

TOMORROW

Written by Anyah Nancy Jackson

Inspired by Say It John Coltrane:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=oRh0hxV1 SU>

Tomorrow

The sun will rise

tomorrow

The trees will bloom

The stars will shine

Look into your lovers eye

And everything is alright

Tomorrow

The breeze is free

The sun is warm

His promises are yes and amen

Tomorrow

If I gave up today would it matter

If I stayed in today because of the weather

Will tomorrow still wait for me

I'll have to wait and see

For tomorrow

Tomorrow

The sun will rise

tomorrow

The trees will bloom

The stars will shine

Look into your lovers eye

And everything is alright

Tomorrow

A WORD FROM THE AUTHOR:

I've always loved Jazz, I love to sing Jazz, I love the feeling. The calmness it brings. I love how time stops when jazz is in the room. We all need that moment to breathe, I'm just the kind of person that wants to live in that moment forever. When I wrote this song, I was in the shower. "Say it" by John Coltrane was blasting through my speakers and the words just came to me. I grabbed my phone and either put the lyrics in my notes or voice memoed the melody, I never know which came first.

This song is a reminder that tomorrow will come, no need to worry. Mercies are new every morning. The simple promised delights in this song, like the sun rising, or the stars shining, are reminders to me that God keeps his promises and everything will always be okay. We all need that reminder every once and a while.